The Washington Post-Kaiser Family Foundation-Harvard University: Survey of Political Independents

Methodology

The Washington Post-Kaiser Family Foundation-Harvard University Survey Project is a threeway partnership and an experiment in combining survey research and reporting to better inform the public. The partners jointly design and analyze surveys examining public knowledge, perceptions and misperceptions on major issues.

The Survey of Political Independents, the $16^{\text {th }}$ in this series, was conducted by telephone from May 3 to June 3, 2007 among 2,140 randomly selected adults nationwide, including additional interviews with randomly selected self-identified independents, for a total of 1,014 political independents. Interviews were conducted in English and Spanish.

Results are weighted to adjust for the additional interviews, and to ensure the data are reflective of the demographics of the actual adult population in terms of age, race, sex, education and region. The table below shows the number of interviews and margin of sampling error for key subgroups.

| Population | Number interviewed | Margin of sampling error |
| :--- | :---: | :---: |
| Total | 2,140 | $\pm 3$ percentage points |
| Independents | 1,014 | $\pm 4$ percentage points |
| Democrats | 542 | $\pm 5$ percentage points |
| Republicans | 462 | $\pm 5$ percentage points |

Representatives of The Washington Post, The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation and Harvard University worked together to develop the survey questionnaire and analyze the results. Each organization bears the sole responsibility for the work that appears under its name.

The project team included Jon Cohen, The Washington Post director of polling and Jennifer Agiesta, polling analyst; Drew E. Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation, Mollyann Brodie, vice president and director of public opinion and media research, and Elizabeth Hamel, associate director of public opinion and media research; and Robert J. Blendon, professor of health policy and political analysis at the Harvard School of Public Health and the John F. Kennedy School of Government, and John M. Benson, managing director of the Harvard Opinion Research Program in the Harvard School of Public Health.

Telephone interviews were conducted by ICR of Media, Pa.

Please note: (1) Table percentages may not add to $100 \%$ due to rounding. (2) Values less than $0.5 \%$ are indicated by an asterisk (*). (3) "Vol." indicates that a response was volunteered by the respondent and not an explicitly offered choice. (4) Sampling error is only one of many potential sources of error in this or any other public opinion poll.

1. What one issue or problem would you say is most important for the President and Congress to address at this time? Is there a second issue that you think is almost as important for the president and Congress to address? (OPEN-ENDED)
